

---

Meta's woes, Twitter's close and the end of an investing epoch

In this episode of Stocks Neat, Steve and Gareth talk about how the tech bust has finally hit the likes of Alphabet, Microsoft and Meta, with some very low growth rates coming from these tech giants that have outperformed for decades.

They also chat about the impending Musk takeover of Twitter, including the open letter of demands written by Twitter employees, and whether they think it will have an impact on Musk's plan to fire a significant percentage of the workforce (spoiler alert - they don't). This is all washed down with Oban Single Malt whisky from Oban, Scotland.

Gareth on the Twitter takeover "It's a neat way to wrap up this whole ridiculous Musk Twitter takeover saga. It's finally coming to a close. Though it really was comedy gold, it's been hard to laugh some days because we've been shareholders and we've seen the stock go up and down."

We'd love your feedback. If you like what you're hearing (and what we're drinking), be sure to follow and subscribe - we're doing this every month.

Drink of choice:
Oban 14 Year Single Malt Scotch Whisky

You can listen on:

Spotify
Apple
Buzzsprout
YouTube